(a) Policy.

The community relations coordinator and facility administrator(s) serve as ex-officio (non-voting) members of the community resource council, and will support the organization by participating in council meetings and activities, and providing certain resources, support, and supplies. Other employees of the Texas Youth Commission (TYC) may participate in the community resource council activities on a limited basis.

(b) Procedures.

- (1) The community relations coordinator and facility administrator(s) may not hold any council office, make motions, participate in council deliberations or cast any votes. A former community relations coordinator or facility administrator should not be considered for council membership until at least six months have elapsed after separation from employment with TYC.
  - (2) Other employees are encouraged to participate in council projects/fund-raisers and may attend council meetings as observers when their work schedule permits.
