Do I have to attend the DAEP or JJAEP?
Yes. According to the Texas Education Code Sec. 37.006 the school district must enroll students returning from TJJD in their DAEP* or JJAEP until they have reviewed a student’s records that include academic records and the notice under Article 15.27. A school district may continue the student’s placement in the DAEP beyond one semester if there is reason to believe that the student’s return to the regular classroom setting threatens the safety of others or will be detrimental to the learning process. I get Special Education services. Should I focus on getting a high school equivalency exam or a high school diploma?

As a special education student, it is more beneficial to you to get your high school diploma. Accommodations and modifications are available to you in class and on STAAR tests that may not be available to you on the high school equivalency exam. Your ARD committee and the Individual Graduation Committee will work together to customize your graduation requirements. Customization is not available on high school equivalency exams. Can I take a high school equivalency exam (GED, HiSet, or TASC) instead of returning to school?

Students under 16 years of age may not take a high school equivalency exam. A public agency that has supervision or custody of the youth under a court order may recommend the high school equivalency exam for students 16 or older in certain instances. Ask your Education Reentry Liaison about this option. Certificate of High School Equivalency Information

Proof of Residency

Under §25.001(d), "[t]he board of trustees shall determine whether an applicant for admission is a resident . . . for purposes of attending the public schools" under that subsection and "may adopt reasonable guidelines for making a determination as necessary to protect the best interests of students (emphasis added)." [50] TEA Public Education Chapter 25

This ability to adopt guidelines should not be misinterpreted as the ability to redefine the legal concept of residency established by our state law. The traditional, basic residence criteria are living in the district and having the present intention to remain there. See Martinez v. Bynum, 461 U.S. 321, 330-333 (1983), Arredondo v. Brockett, 648 F.2d 425 (5th Cir. 1981). The board of trustees' authority is to provide guidelines that will enable a student to substantiate his or her residency and enable the board to determine if the student is a resident of the district.

Residency is not defined by an address on a driver's license, a signature on a lease, or the address on a utility bill. These are indicators that may expedite verifying residency, but the absence of such indicators is not conclusive that the student is not a resident. Furthermore, the fact that a student is living in a household that is leased or owned by someone outside the student's immediate family may be an indicator that the student is homeless and entitled to admission under §25.001(b)(5). TEA Public Education Chapter 25

Grandparent in District

Section 25.001(b)(9) entitles a student who resides in Texas but does not reside in the district to admission if a grandparent of the student resides in the district and the grandparent provides a substantial amount of after-school care for the student as determined by the local school board.
